Training

Successful Police Dispatcher I/II applicants will attend and complete a training process which involves classroom training, ride alongs on the road with officers, dispatcher sit alongs, as well as on the job training with a trainer. Dispatchers are required to master three phases of training in order to pass probation. The first phase teaches trainees how to handle police related calls for service, map reading, radio codes, CAD functions and more. The second and third phases of training teaches the trainee how to dispatch, more radio codes, radio procedures, more map reading, more CAD functions, monitoring and tracking officers on the radio and more.

Dispatchers are required to make quick decisions; coordinate multiple tasks at one time, such as typing while listening and responding to the phone and radio; be courteous, calm and professional; must have common sense and the ability to maintain control of a situation.

Completion of all three training phases will be within the first year. Each phase will be mastered before the trainee is passed on to the next phase. The trainee is left on the floor alone once the current phase is mastered to allow time for proficiency. Training is worked on all shifts to give trainees the opportunity to master the types of requests that are handled on each shift. When the third phase of training has been successfully completed, the trainee will receive a 10% pay increase. When the trainee has been released from probation, an additional 5% increase will be given.

Shift Work

Once released on his/her own a trainee is likely to work a graveyard or PM shift. Most shifts require weekend hours and holidays. Police Dispatchers bid for shifts every six months. Bidding is done by seniority, based on date of hire, for shifts that consist of working mostly four – ten hour shifts. Some shifts consist of working five – eight hour shifts. Schedules are evaluated every six months and adjusted accordingly.

Testing Process

The testing and evaluation process can take several weeks. Time periods are approximate. Please be patient and do not be discouraged. We simply want to give each applicant the consideration they deserve. The best applicants will be passed on to the next testing process after the hiring manager reviews the results – not every applicant is sent forward. Applicants are encouraged to schedule time to sit in Communications with a dispatcher for a few hours, during the testing process. Testing will follow the listed process:

- Hands on dispatcher testing
- Oral Panel Interview
- Background review
- Polygraph
- Background Investigation
- Psychological
- Post offer pre-employment drug screen

In most cases, a candidate who successfully completes this process will be given an offer of employment. In certain circumstances, if the division is fully staffed, a candidate will be placed on a hire list until a vacancy occurs.
